

Pablo Ochoa – saxophonist, teacher, performer and composer

He was born in the city of Loja, Ecuador. In 1998 he joined the group “Tambores y otros demonios” (Drums and other demons) as a percussionist, and it is with this group that he began his musical career.

In 2002 started his saxophone studies at National Music School of Quito Ecuador until 2009, performing in several Jazz Music Festivals as part of the Big Band Music School

In 2012 Pablo completed his debut solo album “Walking”, and introduced the music listening audience to a lovely style of smooth jazz music, influenced by Blues, Bossa Nova, Swing and Latin.

Currently, Pablo is a composer, arranger, interpreter and teacher of Music Program at the (INEPE) Institute of Research, Education, and Promotion of Ecuador, where he works with children and young artists who look at music as a career and an important component of life. Pablo is also working on his second album.
