

John Clark is an accomplished stand-up comedian, writer, and actor who performs regularly at all three of the major comedy clubs in America: The Laugh Factory, The Improv, and the World Famous Comedy Store. He has also become a favorite headliner in clubs across Europe! Originally from the East Coast, he now lives and works predominantly in the Los Angeles area, though he is happiest when touring all over the country in colleges, clubs and any place they will hand him a microphone. As an actor, John can be seen on “Walker, Texas Ranger” with the acting tour de force, Chuck Norris amongst other television and film appearances. John’s energetic, honest and playful take on life has delighted audiences from coast to coast.

After 36 hours of labor, John Clark was born with a cone shaped head, which may explain his short attention span. Growing up in 15 different states, he attended 5 different middle schools and 4 different high schools all across America. Thoroughly confused at this point, John found his home on the stage and has never looked back. There is nothing he loves more than the sound of laughter, and he loves to bring laughs wherever he goes. John trained under Groundlings Improv instructor Randy Bennett, and was a founding member of the successful touring group "Section 8 Comedy" in Dallas, Texas. He holds a Bachelors in Theatre Arts degree from the University of Mary Washington as well as an Associates of Applied Arts Degree in Performance Acting from KD College in Texas. He headlines clubs and colleges all across the US, and has performed in countless television shows, plays, films, and comedy venues. John has become an award-winning comedian, a voice-over artist, a produced playwright, an accomplished actor and, proudly, a man with a round head. For many years, John has been a favorite to his acting students across the country; They have gone on to perform in major national commercials and films, as well as on fashion runways and on billboards!

John lives in Los Angeles and Las Vegas with his wife Ashley, who is clearly a patient, kind, and loving person.
